Dedication

Mr. David Fallon

The Class of 2006 would like to dedicate this yearbook to our class advisor, Mr. David Fallon. We first met Mr. Fallon in the classroom as our History teacher freshman year and he soon volunteered to be our class advisor. He was an excellent teacher and an outstanding class advisor, making sure we had many memorable activities during our four years at Millis High School. We would like to thank him for all his hardwork and dedication to our class and we are proud to dedicate this yearbook to him.

Retirements

Mrs. Barbara Harrington

Mr. Ted Hoffman

Mr. John Kennedy

The Administration

Dr. Peter Sanchioni

To the class of 2006, I wish you the very best in your next venture whether that is college, work, or the military. I challenge you to think positively in all situations. Plan for success and celebrate its achievement. If you believe in yourself, YOU CAN make a difference. One of the world's most pressing needs is for people to believe in and stick up for others who are less fortunate. As you prepare yourself for a career that I hope brings much success, think of a way to give back. Join a charitable organization, donate your time to the less fortunate, and interrupt mean spirited people from acting. It is when we do these things that we truly make the world a better place.

Keep your happy memories of Millis and think of them when you are faced with a challenge.

"Remember you were born an original – don't become someone else's copy."

Final Day of Senior Year

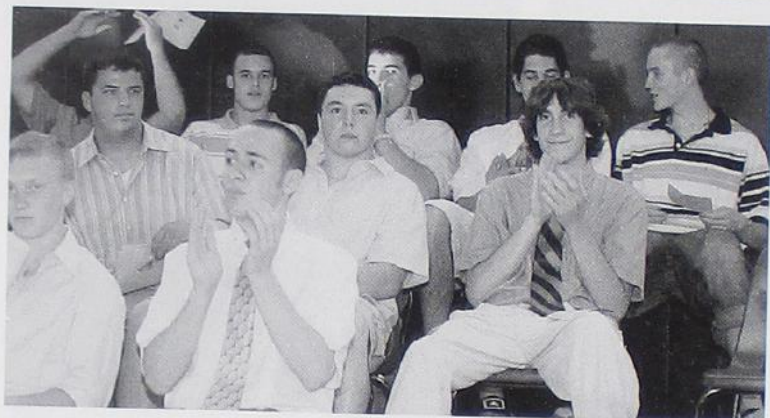

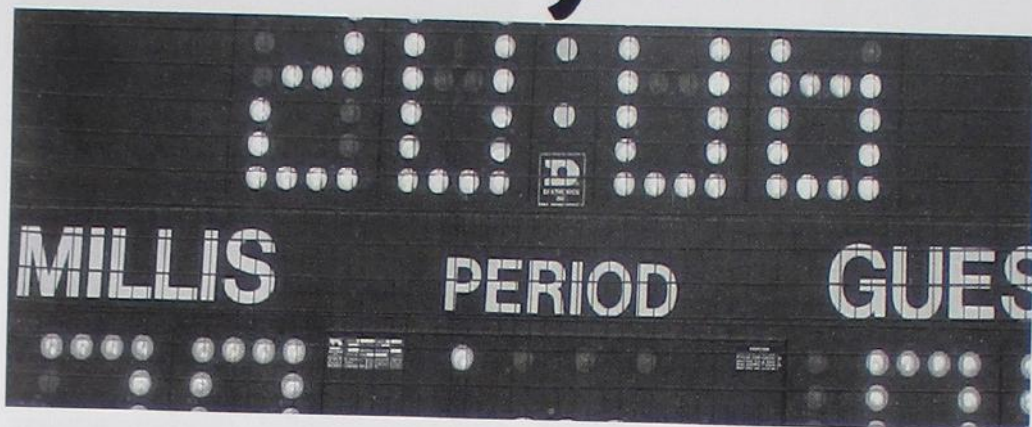

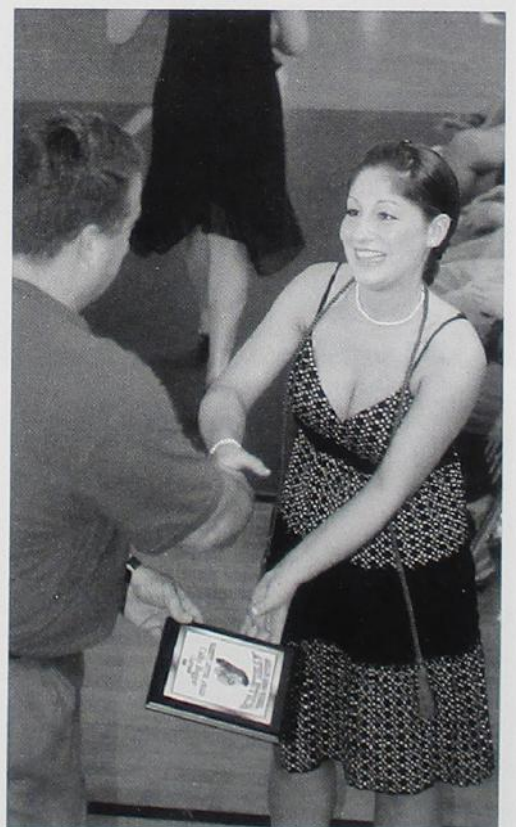

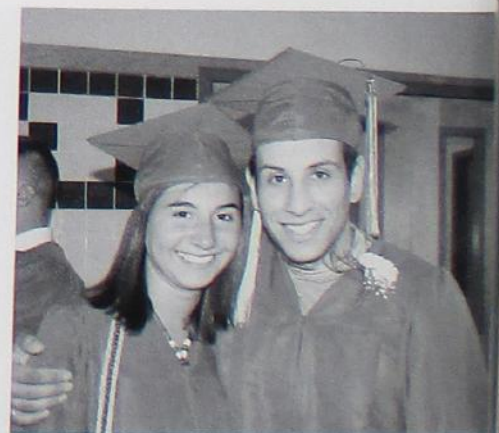

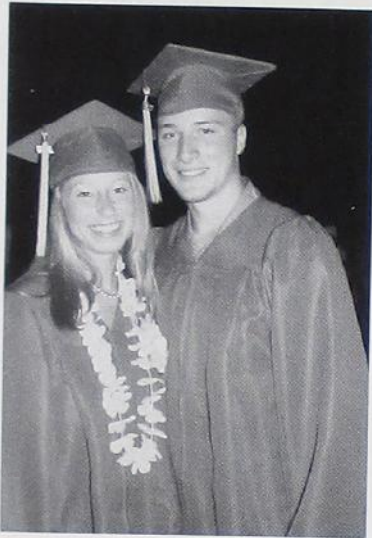

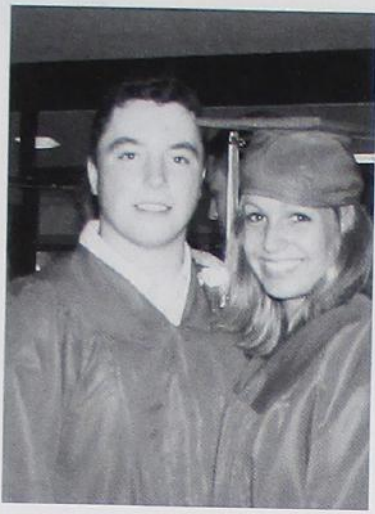

Senior Banquet

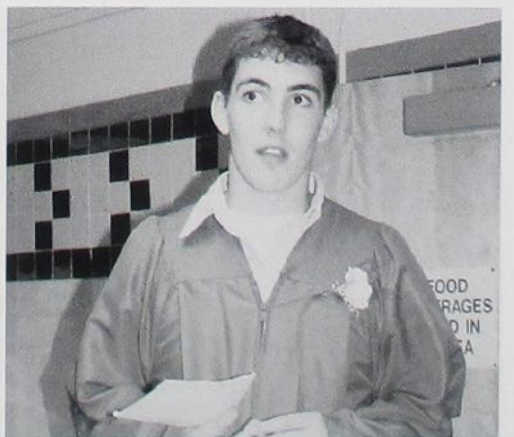

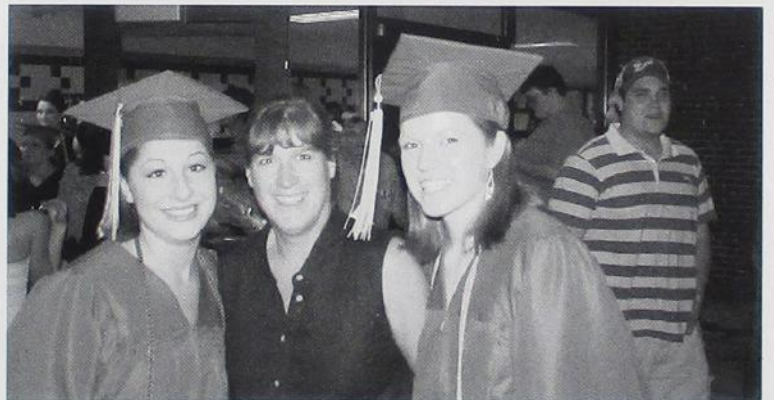

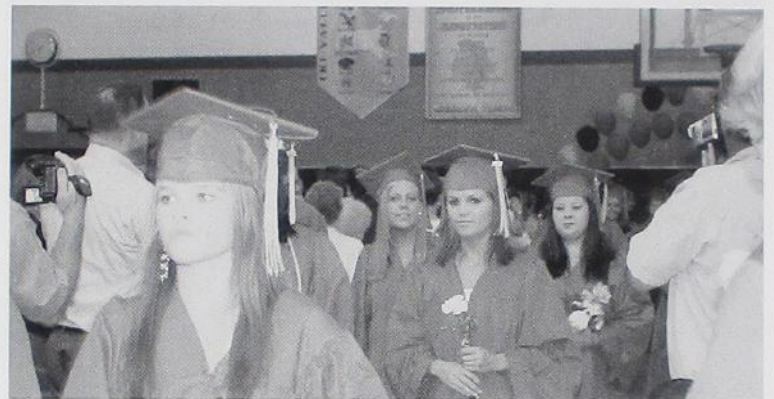

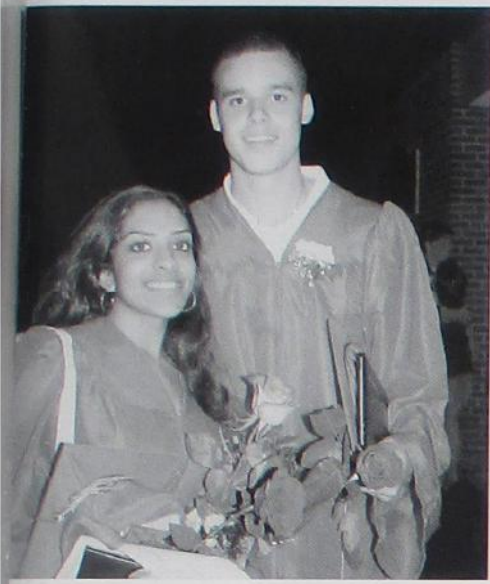

Class Day . . .

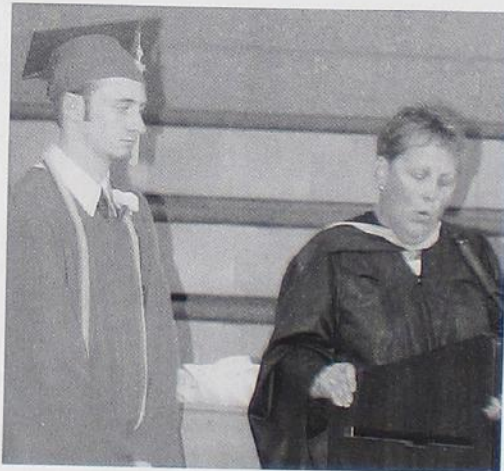

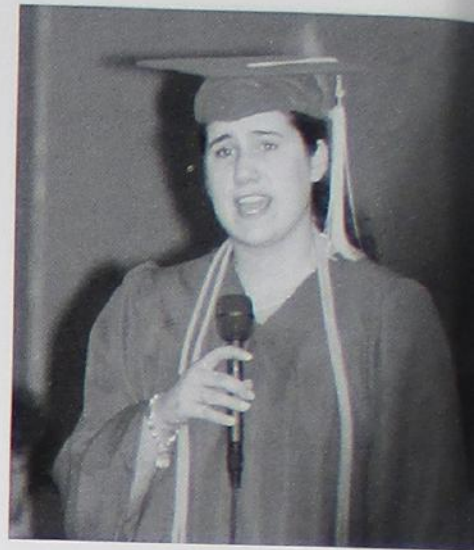

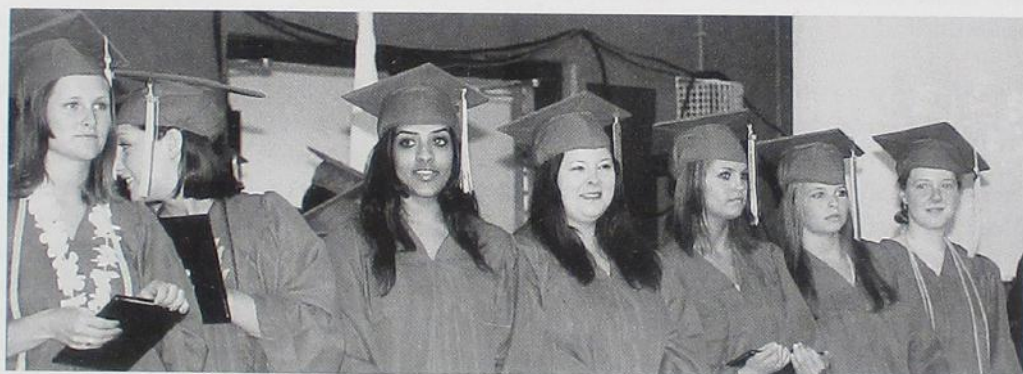

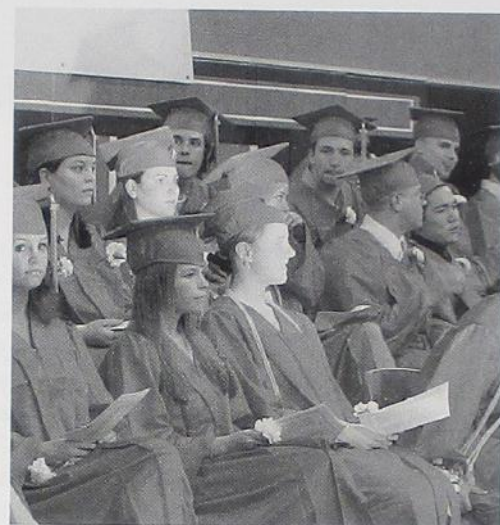

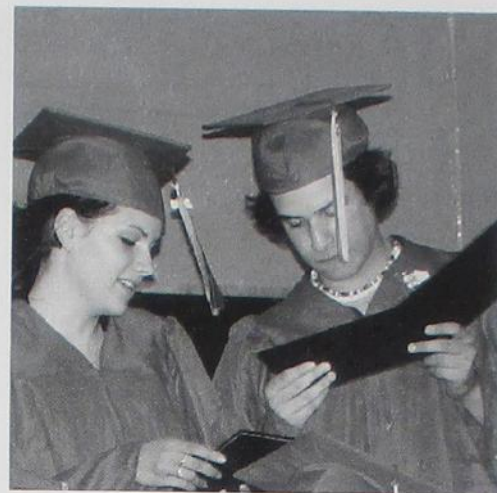

Graduation!!

Jessica Murray
Valedictorian

Good evening everyone.

I could begin this speech with a list. First I might list off everyone who is attending, from Dr. Sanchioni to those vague "guests" always attached to the end of the greetings, just in case someone was forgotten. I could go the MCAS route with a list to set the stage. Maybe I'd put down different adjectives to describe the class – those crazy, artsy, hilarious, dynamic, achieving kids. I could impress the town and start listing our accomplishments. Championship athletes, all-state singers, Emmy winners, National Merit scholars all exist within this class. I could tell you all the professions people want to be – future nurses, journalists, scientists, lawyer, entrepreneurs, filmmakers.

I could give you statistics, anecdotes, sermons, prophecies, extended metaphors even! Maybe I'd talk about sky diving, or the way the boys chopped down that tree in elementary school. I could explain the importance of education or reference pop culture or politics. With all these choices, how is one to know where to start?

First of all, I don't think anyone actually knows what "dynamic" is supposed to mean. It's just a word that came up a lot during the time of NEASC. What people don't tell you is that these words make mere vignettes. In order to understand what makes this class tick, you can't just list off things that they've done. You have to be with them, eat breakfast at Bob's with them, dance in the hallways with them. What defines our class is not the adjectives, the accomplishments, the goals. What matters more are the caring individuals that largely make up our class, the ones that know how to make you feel loved and help you have fun. These people, regardless of the prizes they've won or the titles they've earned, will be successful just because of the way they've learned to act as people. I wish you all the best of luck, and congratulations to the class of 2006.

Kaitlyn Ingraham
Salutatorian

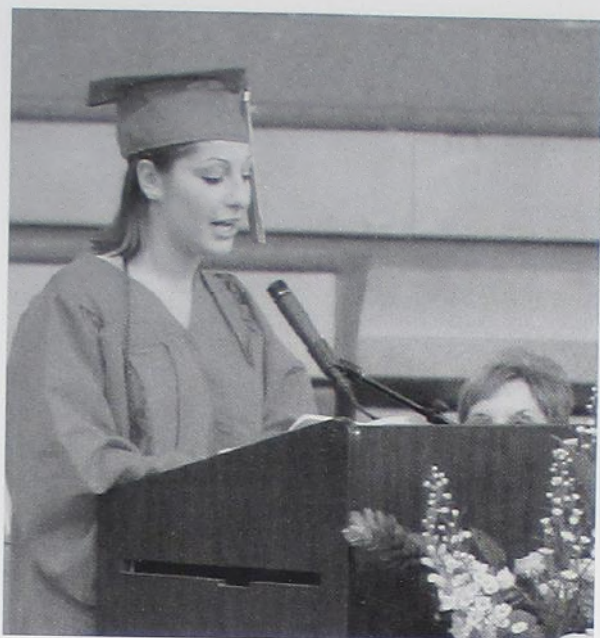

Welcome friends, family, faculty and especially, graduates. I don't need to tell you why we're all here, but just in case you don't know, we, the class of 2006, are about to finally graduate. Let that sink in for a moment. We've been waiting for this day for years; We've been building up to this moment since pre-school or even earlier, and we're finally here. We've seen movies and listened to songs over the years that all tell us how we're supposed to feel and what today is supposed to be like. But the truth is, what exactly is so special about this day? I mean, June 1st comes every year, so what's so special about this year?

Graduating is kind of like turning 18. I know some of you aren't 18 yet, but bear with me. The day before your 18th birthday you stay up until midnight, anxiously awaiting the second you become an adult. At 11:59 you look at the clock and think to yourself "this is my last minute of being a child." And then, after what seems like hours of staring at the clock, it changes and your 18. As far as the world's concerned you're officially an adult. But you don't really feel any different. Oh, that must be it. Everyone knows that you aren't really 18 until the exact time you were born. I was born around 5:23pm. At 5:22 you can bet I was waiting by a clock thinking "this is my last real minute of being a kid." Yet when the clock changed, I still didn't feel any different.

Today is the day that we're finally done with high school, Yes! Today we're supposed to kiss our childhood good bye and assume the responsibility of an adult. But do you feel like an adult yet? When they finally call your name, which looks like it won't be for at least a half hour at this rate, and you strut across the gym and receive that valuable piece of paper (or plaque) that you've worked so hard for over the years, do you think you'll feel it then? I almost guarantee that there will be no epiphany (which in Mrs. Russ' class is defined as an "Aha! Moment"), no epiphany that will accompany our graduation. You won't automatically feel different.

So what's the point of graduating if you don't feel changed right away? Well, tonight is simply a night to mark the end of our high school career and congratulate us all in ceremony. It's a night where the rest of the world can label us to be changed. It's what this night stands for that's important. The truth about tonight is it represents the hard work we've put in over the years, days, hours, minutes and seconds. It stands for what we learned and what we experienced, nothing more. In all honesty, we will feel what we expected to feel tonight as time passes.

Someday you'll look back on this all and remember today as being an epiphany regardless of whether or not it is. Someday you'll look back and realize that high school wasn't as bad as you thought and that you learned more, experienced more, and grew more in this school than you ever imagined while actually being here. I know you all can't wait until these speeches are over and until you can finally get out of here. But before you do, take a second and think back on your high school experience. Remember everything good, and everything bad. Think of what you learned, not just textbooks and classes, but what you learned about life. Think about how different you are now compared to how you were as a freshmen.

Colby Hegger Graduation Student Speech

Good evening Dr. Sanchioni, Mrs. McCann, faculty, school committee members, town officials, family, friends, and the class of 2006.

When they told us we wouldn't want to leave, we laughed. And now when they say it is time to go – we cry.

As the days of our senior year slowly wound down we could not wait to be done – no more MCAS, no more SATs and no more college applications.

As we sit here before you in our final high school moment – we think about all the fun we had, memories we made and everlasting friendships we will cherish forever and we realize that we don't want this to end.

Unlike most students we have known each other since kindergarten and although sometimes it is hard to tell because yes – the boys still push the girls when they like them and yes – we still cut in the lunch line, we have grown and matured together in the last 13 years of our lives to become the sophisticated ladies and gentleman that sit in front of you today and it truly shows in all aspects of our lives.

From little league sports to winning state championships and from coloring to AP classes. In a small town where the entire student body is less than most schools entire senior class – we have accomplished sooo much.

Jenna Burstyn, Amy Pijanowski, and Kaitlyn Ingraham received honorable mention Emmys for their television work.

Jessi Murray is a National Merit Scholar.

Madison Mastrangelo was accepted and participated in Art All State.

Chris Santos was runner up for league MVP in Basketball.

Laura Winslow sang at Symphony Hall with the All State Chorus.

Just to name a few . . .

We have proven that we are capable of anything and everything. And we have been able to accomplish so much because of our school and community.

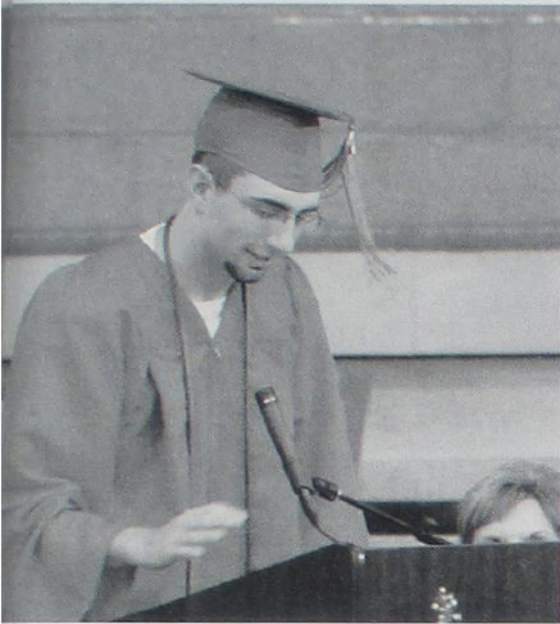

Our teachers act not only as teachers but also as mentors and friends. From Mr. Ingraham's inspirational quotes to Mr. Hoffman's rendition of the bells to Mrs. Harrington's great sense of humor – we have learned so much more than how to solve an equation and how to write an essay, although we have definitely mastered both. We have learned life lessons that we will take and use to succeed in all obstacles before us.

I stand here confidently to say that every single one of us has the potential to succeed and to you the class of 2006 – your greatest limitation is your own mind. If you believe you can do it you will and if you think you can't then you will be right.

We have proven to those who had their doubts that we can and will continue to achieve great things. We are the little engine that could and did. It is now time to move on from school that has become a family and prove to the rest of the world what we can and will do. We will never forget the fun we had, memories we made and everlasting friendships that we cherish, instead we will take it with us to better ourselves and others. The past four years has been an amazing part of our lives and although we wish the fun would never end, there are so many great opportunities and adventures before us. "Success is never final. Failure is never fatal. It is courage that counts." Said Winston Churchill.

As we venture into a world that has more than a bowling alley and sub shops, I know it is hard to believe – many opportunities and chances will come our way. I ask all of you, my fellow graduates, to always have courage, take risks and embrace change; it is a time for us to discover whom we are. Never be afraid, for those who are afraid to fall, never learn to fly.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to represent the student body; it has been a pleasure and honor. Class of 2006 – congratulations, good luck and a quote from our class' favorite song by Journey. . . "DON'T STOP BELIEVING"

Steven Lambert Graduation Welcome

Hello everyone, and welcome to the graduation of the class of 2006. It is nice to see we can fit basically the entire town into our tiny gym. I would like to thank everyone for coming.

Being class president for all four years has really brought me closer to the students here at Millis High School. But seeing how there is only 305 students, that was really a problem in the first place. Through out our high school career I have enjoyed spending quality time with my classmates at different events such as car washes and cook-outs. Whether it was car pooling to the SATs or selling burgers at the Firemans Muster there never was a dull moment.

Well here we are at graduation. Waiting to receive that certificate we have worked so hard for. It is our time to move on to what some call "the real world". But whether it be college, work, military service, or any other types of plans I believe that we will all be successful in taking whichever path we choose.

It is sad to say good-bye to everyone, but it is our time and we must cherish the moment. Good luck to everyone in the class of 2006.

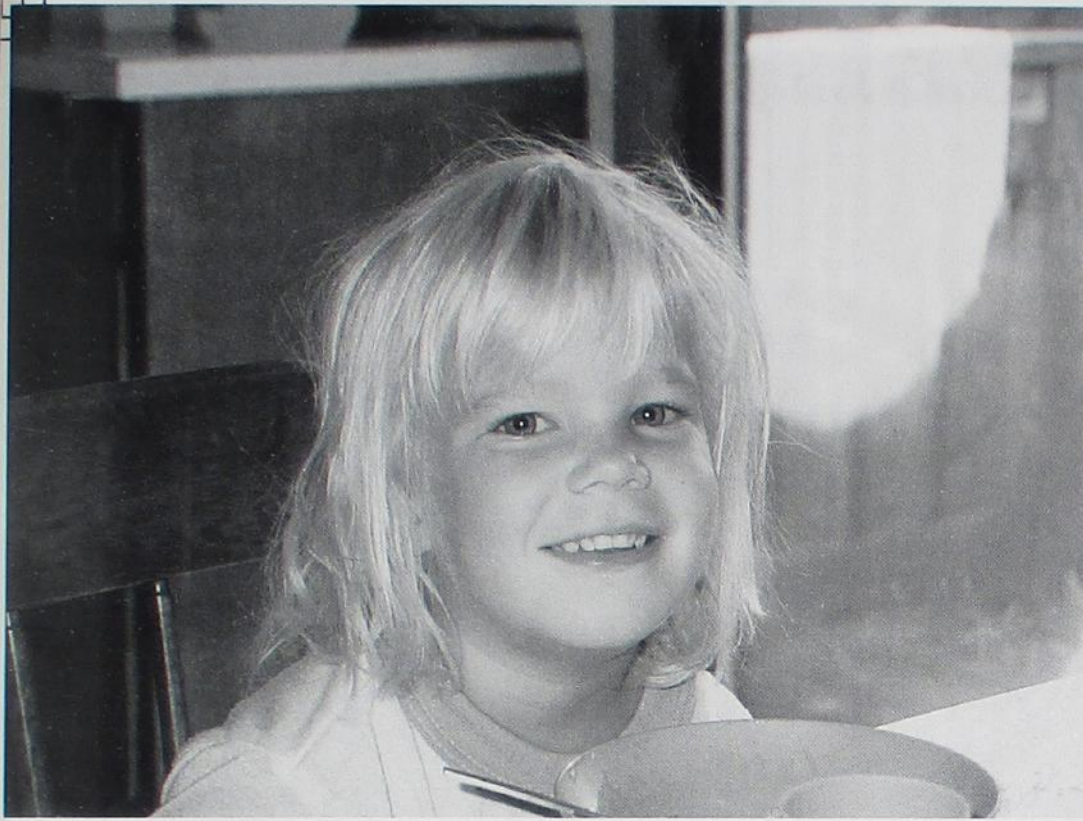

Again, thank you all for coming and I hope you all enjoy the rest of the ceremony.

For feeling very proud,
For thinking lots of lovely thoughts
And saying them out loud

It is a time for feeling love
